

Further Announcement by BlackRock Asset Management Deutschland AG (“BlackRock”) regarding Corporate Actions Misclassifications, Tax Assessments and Planned Correction Events for German-domiciled iShares Funds

Effective Thursday 20 April 2017¹

- On 31 August 2016, BlackRock first announced that certain German-domiciled iShares exchange traded funds (ETFs) were affected by tax accounting errors made by State Street (the administrator of the funds) between 2010 and August 2016
- BlackRock is now in receipt of tax assessments for certain categories of corporate action misclassifications in respect of 41 affected German-domiciled iShares ETFs
- In light of these tax assessments, BlackRock will take corrective actions in respect of these funds on specified dates and will pay out a special dividend for certain funds where set out below
- Further guidance is expected in due course from the German Ministry of Finance regarding non-EU Returns of Capital, which have been received by 24 funds
- All affected funds are expected to continue to trade normally over correction periods

Background and Purpose of This Announcement

On 31 August 2016, BlackRock announced that certain German-domiciled iShares ETFs were affected by accounting errors made by State Street (the administrator of the funds) between 2010 and August 2016.

The errors specifically concerned the incorrect classification of certain corporate action events as either income or capital gains; as a result some fund distributions or accumulations were not appropriately calculated.

The errors were in respect of income and capital gains from both German and non-German securities, with differing German withholding tax consequences.

BlackRock is now in receipt of tax assessments in respect of certain categories of corporate actions misclassifications affecting 41 German-domiciled iShares ETFs and will take corrective action in respect of these.

It is possible, though not probable, that 22 of these 41 German-domiciled iShares ETFs and another 2 German-domiciled iShares ETFs may be subject to future tax assessments relating to the treatment of returns of capital made by entities outside the European Union. Guidance is awaited from the relevant tax authorities on the non-EU Returns of Capital and the timing of this is currently not known.

The purpose of this announcement is to make investors and market participants aware of corrective action BlackRock will take in light of the tax assessments received for the 41 funds.

For each affected fund the corrective action and its timing is dependent on the nature of the original misclassification, its impact on the fund (e.g. a positive or negative income adjustment), the fund's use of income (i.e. accumulating or distributing) and the fund's financial year end.

BlackRock is fully committed to ensuring that all investors are treated fairly. We understand that investors may have questions in relation to the misclassifications and/or corrections outlined in this announcement and have provided a contact email address to respond to any queries in this regard.

Overall Tax Assessment Status

The below table summarises the current tax assessment status for each corporate action type.

	Corporate Action Category	No. of Funds Impacted	Tax Assessment Status
A	German Corporate Actions and Foreign Corporate Actions	41 funds	Tax assessment received. See table below for differential amounts.
B	Non-EU Returns of Capital	22 of the above funds plus another 2 funds	Guidance is awaited, following a recent court case, from the relevant tax authorities regarding non-EU Returns of Capital. It is possible, though not probable, that BlackRock may receive further tax assessments as a result of this guidance.

Tax Assessments by Fund, Correction Method

The below table summarises the correction values determined by the German tax authority in the tax assessments received (category “A” above) as well as the intended correction method and date, where a correction is applicable. For some funds BlackRock decided to pay the adjustment amount as a Special Dividend so that the adjustment amount does not have to get accumulated at year-end.

Trading Arrangements for the Affected Funds

Units of the affected funds are expected to continue to trade normally on the stock exchanges on which they are listed over the correction dates.

Tax Implications for Investors

The information given in this section in regard to the tax consequences of the misclassifications and planned correction events is not exhaustive and does not constitute legal or tax advice.

The tax impact on investors of these corporate actions misclassification corrections will vary by investor type and location and broadly depends on (a) investors' tax status, and (b) when investors have bought and/or sold units.

Investors should consult their own professional advisers as to the tax implications of continuing to hold units over the correction events or selling units prior to the correction events.

Generally speaking, we would expect in principle that there should be no significant negative tax impact for those German and non-German investors who were invested in the affected funds at the time the misclassification occurred and who remained invested in such funds until the time of the correction dates.
